

Ford says if he wins big in Florida, Reagan will be kayoed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says that if he wins the Florida primary and does so by a big margin, that will be a knockout punch to the presidential hopes of Ronald Reagan.

The President's campaign manager, Howard Callaway, says, however, that it will take a back-to-back Ford victories in Florida March 9 and in Illinois March 16 to convince Reagan that he can't win the Republican nomination.

These assessments in the Ford camp came after the President completed a weekend campaign trip to Florida and prepared for a swing into Illinois this Friday and Saturday.

Buoyed by a victory over

Reagan in last week's New Hampshire primary, Ford headed into Florida with optimism on Saturday and addressed more than 80,000 people in two days.

Despite steady rain that drenched the President down to his bullet-proof vest, Ford attracted more than 60,000 during a 14-stop motorcade on a 40-mile stretch of Florida's south-east coast.

On Sunday, he attracted 10,000 to a barbecue in Sarasota and 8,000 at a Tampa rally during which the President perspired in a hot sun as he recited what he said were his accomplishments in office — reducing inflation and improving the unemployment picture.

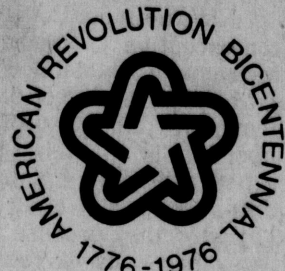

Reagan, campaigning in another part of Florida Saturday, drew much smaller crowds. But most political observers feel the primary race in the Sunshine State will be very close.

Before returning to Washington Sunday night, Ford told campaign workers in Tampa: "I am absolutely certain we are going to win in Florida. Florida is really the key. If we can win, and win big, in Florida, they (Reagan's supporters) ought to know they can't win, period."

He also forecast victories next Tuesday in the Massachusetts and Vermont primaries. Both Ford and Reagan are entered in Massachusetts but neither has campaigned there. Callaway was a bit more reserved as he talked with reporters. He said if the Florida primary had been held four weeks ago, Reagan would have won. But he said the momentum generated by two Ford trips to the state and the New Hampshire victory now moves Ford into good position.

New comet visible before dawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those getting up before sunrise this week should be able to see a bright, newly discovered comet as it swings back into deep space following a rendezvous with the sun.

Comet West passed within 75 million miles of the earth Sunday on its closest approach and is in a position the rest of this week for good naked-eye viewing from the northern hemisphere.

Dr. Brian Marsden of the Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass., says the comet will be best visible from Wednesday to Sunday about an hour before sunrise.

Comet West should appear like a bright, elongated streak of light just above the eastern horizon, slightly south of the rising sun. On Wednesday, the comet should appear about 5 degrees above the horizon, rising higher each day so that it appears at 14 degrees by Sunday.

Marsden said the planet Venus will appear in the general area but should not be confused with the comet.

"Venus will be brighter and, of course, won't have a tail," he said.

Marsden said observers using binoculars or small telescopes should be able to see the comet, the brightest in the northern hemisphere since Comet Bennett in 1970, for the rest of the month.

The sky show will not be for amateurs only.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration says it and other scientific organizations will mount a major effort to study Comet West. NASA will study the comet from earth and in space, using telescopes, rockets and airborne observatories.

While their composition isn't specifically known, comets are thought to be "dirty snowballs" of ice, methane, ammonia and dust. Scientists say comets could be remnants of the material from which our solar system was created.

Youth buried in corn rescued

A rural Dixon youth was rescued by Dixon rural firemen Sunday afternoon after being buried in a corncrib.

Firemen said that when they arrived at the Melvin Becker farm, Rt. 4, Steven Byrnes, 18, Rt. 4, was buried up to his neck in shelled corn. The firemen cut a hole near the bottom of the crib and allowed the corn to drain out, which took about an hour.

Byrnes was taken to KSB Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Coplan files for re-election to SVC Board

Sauk Valley College Board Chairman Ronald Coplan has filed nominating petitions for re-election to the board. Coplan is the second incumbent to file.

William Judd, Chadwick, is also seeking re-election. Two 3-year terms will be filled in the April 10 elections.

Mills planning to retire from Congress

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., says he will retire from Congress because a re-election campaign would cause him to resume drinking. But politicians say Mills made his decision after privately financed public opinion polls indicated he couldn't be renominated.

The 66-year-old former grocer and probate court judge, once chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, says that barring the unforeseen, he will announce by March 9 — when the filing for political office opens — that he'll retire after 38 years in Washington, many of them as one of the capital's most powerful men.

"Whether I could continue to do the job and maintain my sobriety, I don't know," said Mills, who underwent treatment last year as an alcoholic. He told the Arkansas Gazette that "the doctors say the strain might affect me in some way."

Gene Gooss, Mills' executive assistant, recently said Mills' strength in his home district "has been improving month-by-month." And Mills was quoted several times as saying, "The people will forgive you faster than you can forgive yourself."

Nixon returns to his San Clemente estate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon has returned to the privacy of his San Clemente compound after a trip to China that drew honors from his hosts but criticism from some at home.

There was no word whether Nixon would meet with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who was on the West Coast at the Palm Springs home of actor Kirk Douglas when Nixon returned on Sunday from the eight-day trip.

Several Ford Administration and State Department officials said during Nixon's journey that the former president would be debriefed upon his return, as would any visitor returning from China. However, Kissinger had said he would not do the debriefing himself.

Nixon is the only Westerner to have had extensive contacts with the acting premier of China, Hua Kuo-feng. While in China, he talked with Hua for two hours and met for more than an hour with Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Wearing a gray pin-striped suit and his familiar American flag lapel pin, Nixon smiled and waved Sunday as he and Mrs. Nixon descended from the American-made Chinese airliner in which they went to and from China. They were greeted by their daughter, Tricia Nixon Cox.

Two members of the Chinese mission to the United States were also on hand, and the former president chatted briefly with them before leaving in a limousine.

Nixon showed no outward signs of the phlebitis in his right leg which had reportedly flared up during his trip, but he appeared weary after the long flight. He was seen yawning.

During the trip, which was made four years after his historic 1972 visit to China as president, the Chinese accorded the Nixons honors that are usually reserved for sitting national leaders. And, from the first, there was criticism from a number of people at home.

Throughout, the Ford Administration emphasized that Nixon was acting as a private citizen. And after the New Hampshire primary, in which President Ford only slightly outpaced Ronald Reagan, Ford said Nixon's trip had been "probably harmful" to his campaign.

$3.3 billion in block school grants asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford asked Congress today for federal aid to education totaling $3.3 billion in block grants to the states designed to improve schooling "for those with special needs — the handicapped and educationally deprived."

The block grants would replace funding for 24 present aid-to-education programs.

The total amount in Ford's request represents an increase of $200 million in federal aid to education in each of the next three fiscal years. Federal aid to education budgeted for fiscal 1976 totaled $3.24 billion.

Consolidated under the block grants would be programs for elementary and secondary education, education for the handicapped, adult education and vocational education.

"The focus of this block grant will be on improved educational opportunities for those with special needs — the handicapped and educationally deprived," Ford said in his message to Congress.

A White House spokesman said the "educationally deprived" are persons in high-poverty areas.

The President's program would require that 75 per cent of a state's allocation be spent on the educationally deprived and the handicapped — and that vocational education continue to receive support.

The President urged prompt consideration of his proposal, saying it is designed to provide minimum federal regulation and maximum local control.

"Every state will receive as much money as it did in fiscal year 1976 under existing programs," Ford said.

The recommendation is the President's third detailed block grant proposal to Congress. He asked last week for block grants consolidating health programs and social services.

In his new budget, sent to Congress in January, Ford proposed consolidating 59 federal health, education, social-services and child-nutrition programs into block grants to the states.

Under the consolidation plan, only child-nutrition spending would be reduced significantly, by about $900 million.

State and local governments would no longer be required to put up prescribed amounts of matching funds to receive federal money for their programs. Once approved for funds, the states would be given free rein on how to spend the money within each of the four broad areas.

But within seven or eight years, when all federal strings were cut, the states would have to submit spending plans to Washington for advance approval and account for the money afterward.

Ford said switching from matching-fund programs to block grants would eliminate a tangle of federal regulations and give states maximum flexibility in using federal money to meet their education needs as they see fit.

He told the National Governors Conference last week that his proposal would "reduce the administrative burdens of state and local governments while assuring a federal commitment to elementary and secondary education."

"No state will receive less federal money under my proposal than it did in fiscal year 1976 under all of the programs that would be consolidated," Ford said.

Focus on busing on eve of primary in Massachusetts

BOSTON (AP) — A rally scheduled for Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace tonight, the eve of the nation's second presidential primary, is helping to keep attention fixed on the volatile and divisive forced busing issue in Massachusetts.

The state's primary is scheduled for Tuesday, and the race is considered so divided and unpredictable that a relative handful of votes could change the order of finish among the eight major Democratic candidates.

Throughout the campaign here, candidates have either exploited or tried to avoid the busing issue. Today they were fanning out across the state for final campaigning.

Unlike the New Hampshire campaign, when the spotlight was on the Republican race, neither major GOP candidate has set foot in the Bay State in recent months, nor are they expected. President Ford is heavily favored, and has spent $200,000 in an effort to ensure the victory.

Ronald Reagan has no official campaign under way in the state, although much of his New Hampshire media advertising was seen here.

Although 43 GOP delegates are at stake, Reagan's Northeast coordinator said his candidate doesn't view Massachusetts as crucial.

"Massachusetts is not one of those primaries that is convincing to other Republicans as an indicator of the attractiveness of the candidate," said

James Lake. He said that the state's Republican party is a more liberal party than the GOP as a whole.

In the Democratic race in the Bay State — the only state to favor Democratic Sen. George McGovern in the 1972 presidential election — 104 delegates are at stake.

The election here is attracting far more national attention than a simultaneous primary in Vermont. The major reason is that more delegates are at stake. But the busing issue in Boston is also a factor — the chance to measure reaction in a city that for two years has been divided over a court-ordered plan to integrate its schools.

Opponents of forced busing spent much of Sunday urging 3,000 marchers to vote for anti-busing candidates. Meanwhile, most of the candidates found themselves being questioned about the issue on television panel shows.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who has tried to capture the antibusing vote here, was quizzed about Senate votes on ABC's "Issues and Answers" program.

He said he had voted against some legislation favored by anti-busing groups because "the Congress cannot by statute change a court order directing busing where that court order is based on an interpretation by the court of the 14th Amendment."

Much of the antibusing vote is expected to go to Wallace.

Sue to stop blasting at Byron nuclear site

OREGON — A Rock River Terrace couple has filed suit here seeking $110,000 in damages and a court order to stop blasting at the Commonwealth Edison nuclear power plant site near Byron.

Joseph and Z. Faye Brannum charge the utility and Rockford Blacktop Co., with "seriously damaging" the foundation of their home. The Brannum property adjoins the construction site along German Church Road.

"Walls are cracked and further blasting may result in the house falling," the suit charges.

A mass of rock being blasted is believed to be connected to rock below the Brannum house.

The two-count suit seeks $55,000 in damages from each defendant and a restraining order to curtail the blasting. The couple seeks the judgment for damage to the house, estimated at $10,000; decreased market value of the home, loss of enjoyment from the house due to the blasting and for physical and mental anguish.

The suit claims both defendants say they are not responsible for damage caused by the blasting.

A jury trial was demanded.

Dies in car crash

OREGON — A Chicago man was killed this morning in a head-on collision on icy German Church Road.

Dead is John C. Harrington, 29, an iron worker at the Byron nuclear plant. He was pronounced dead on arrival at the Byron Medical Clinic.

Ogle County Sheriff's deputies said Harrington's northbound car slammed head-on into a northbound auto driven by Nellie Babbitt, 73, Rt. 1, Byron. Babbitt was uninjured.

Deputies said no skid marks were visible on the icy pavement. Officers investigating the accident said the pavement was so slick they had difficulty keeping their balance without falling.

Harrington was presumably on his way to work when the accident occurred at 7:52 a.m.

The accident remains under investigation.

Meeting changed

The regularly scheduled meeting of the Dixon School Board has been postponed to Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Dixon High School auditorium. The change in meeting date was prompted by the observance of Ash Wednesday.

Why voters shunned polling places in '74

Why did only 38 per cent of the voters go to the polls in the election of 1974?

Some felt that the Republicans and Democrats were just alike and the people did not see where there was any benefit to the county, so did not bother to vote.

Living prices are higher. It is more of a struggle to survive. What can be done?

Richard Nixon brought Henry Kissinger into the United States government. As Nixon could not handle the situation, he appointed Gerald Ford vice president, and then quit. Ford, as President, appointed Nelson Rockefeller as vice president and continued with Kissinger as secretary of state and full power over all the various intelligence groups like the FBI, CIA and many others. We kept giving the communist governments the advantage of all negotiations. Kissinger said we received the advantage. What do you think?

The American people know that we have been going downhill, and with Henry Kissinger the slide down has increased. Kissinger is continuing to tell what he has done to hold back the Russians, but in the end we find out the communists have gained more than they expected. Angola is the latest escape.

Now America has an opportunity to change its course. Ronald Reagan has pointed out that in the administrative deal with the Soviets in SALT II, Kissinger and Ford will abandon our vital cruise missile advantage. It is significant and should not be underestimated, for it could reverse our 25 years' dependence on nuclear weapons for security. The cruise missile is a flying bomb. It can be fired from a submarine, from the deck of a ship or launched from an airplane. It has an accurate guidance system and flies low enough to avoid radar and the enemy anti-aircraft system.

Reagan warns that the people should know what the treaty says before it is given to Congress in order that the citizens can inform their Congress what to do.

Nationally, President Ford said, "I will never transfer serious problems from the federal government to the states." Eventually Ford desires the power to collect and spend your money, intimidating you are too dumb to manage your own business. The great ability of the President and the intelligent senators and representatives can do a better job. The history of the last 50 years shows what a previcator he is.

Ronald Reagan's deeds as governor of California and his campaign proposal, one of which is to return the conduct of welfare to the people in the states, will be better for the poor and better for the tax-paying citizens.

We have a good government, but scheming, greedy people now in power. If you really want a change it will be necessary to vote for men with courage, honesty and integrity. If your party does not have these men, then vote for the men in the American Party, or independents.

Town reformed at last

By TOM TIEDE

LUDOWICI, Ga. (NEA)—Not all that vanishes in America is nostalgic. The fading away of corruption in this tiny Southern community is instead, for the nation as well as the residents, a signal for joy and hope. Good riddance to the past in Ludowici, it was awful. The future by comparison can't be anything but good.

For as far back as anyone remembers, Ludowici and surrounding Long County were twin bastions of repression in the flats of Georgia timber country. Politics were controlled by a rump old legal baron named Ralph Dawson, and the law was in the hands of equally monarchical Brown Jones. No one held office who didn't agree with this majority of two, and woe be those who violated what passed for the rules. Rule really. Says a local: "The only thing Dawson and Jones demanded was that they get theirs and they did it, oh, they did."

What they got was a nationwide reputation for running one of the sleaziest counties in America. Former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox said it aptly enough: "The place is lousy, rotten, corrupt, nasty and no good." The sentiment was echoed by an astonishing number of traveling Americans who from unhappy experience nicknamed Ludowici "The Town Without Pity."

Located southwest of Savannah at the crossroads of what used to be major highway routes 301 and 82, Ludowici became in the 1940-50s the speed trap capital of the nation. "Anybody who came through got clipped," says filling station operator J. D. Futch. The Futch station sits near the location of the town's only traffic light where in the old days "You could stand here all day long and watch the boys flag near every car with an out of state plate." Caution did the visitors no good; if they weren't speeding, they weren't stopping at the light properly, or they were swerving over the center line, or, in some cases, "the boys just got them for going too slow."

Once got, the routine never varied. Police would harass the victims with heavy questions, this to get them properly worried, then slap them with heavy fines. Payment was immediate, of course, usually to a judge, but sometimes to the police who promptly pocketed the cash. Visitors without means were treated with special severity, normally the clink where visions of the chain gang were implanted until such time as the motorists came up with money from home.

But traffic violations were only part of the ruse. Present Sheriff Cecil Nobles, who was reared two miles outside of Ludowici, says there were unlimited ways in which the locals separated the tourists from their money. Service station attendants checking engine oil would often foul up carburetors, then direct the motorists to a swindle garage for "repairs." Some stores had different prices for tourists than for regulars. Barkeepers often flimflammed customers into paying for double the drinks. "We had dice games, whores, con artists, you name it," says Sheriff Nobles, "our reputation was earned."

The turnaround began when Maddox summoned county boss Dawson to his Atlanta office—and then promptly threw him out as a gesture of contempt. The Interstate 95 was completed along the coast, draining away the bulk of country traffic. Finally, Dawson and his vestpocket sheriff passed on, presumably to a clip joint in the hereafter—and the old ways ended.

Nobles, a pudgy man with a master's degree in elementary education, says in the past couple of years things have been so clean, "I don't even see the FBI much anymore."

All is not purity, perhaps. Nobles says "we never use the roads for revenue now," but that is true only in so far as the ordinary tourist is concerned. Police here have shifted emphasis to what they call "dope runners," which may merely be a kid with a pipeful of pot. The fine is up to $500, plus some self-righteous posturing by the ill-trained local police who remain afflicted with attitudinal gripe.

On fair measure, however, Ludowici and Long County no longer get away with the murder of decency. Most people are fairly safe in this part of the nation again.

LAGOS (NEA)—Nigeria is unlikely to change course under its new head of state. Gen. Obasanjo, the former chief of staff, was Gen. Murtala Mohammed's closest confidant and he has already vowed to continue the "dynamic" policies of his assassinated friend. The supreme military council, which collectively makes all policy decisions, has been left intact after the botched coup attempt on Feb. 13. Col. Dimka of the army's physical training corps, who announced the coup on the radio and is alleged to have shot Gen. Mohammed, is still on the run; he is said to have been at an all-night champagne party before he acted.

Col Dimka failed to rally any significant numbers of soldiers behind his attempt, even in the statement by the 1st infantry division's commander that the trouble was confined to Lagos may not be quite accurate. Another member of the government lost his life—Col Ibrahim Taiwo, governor of Kwara state, who was kidnapped, shot and buried in the morning of the failed coup.

There have been reports of arrests in Ibadan in the west, where the 2nd infantry division is stationed, and of disturbances at Kano in the north. This last report has been strongly denied by the government, and the Reuters correspondent was expelled for putting it out.

Brinkmeier comments

At the present time there are many well intentioned but ill-informed people circulating three proposals for state constitutional amendments.

Of these, only the advance-salary amendment has merit, and that is probably unnecessary because the General Assembly has already changed the law on legislators' salary. After Jan. 12, 1977, legislators will no longer be able to draw two years' pay in advance. The new law allows members to take their salaries in monthly payments or in a one-year lump sum. I am confident most members will opt for monthly payments.

Although I would favor a law requiring legislators to receive their salaries in monthly payments, I should point out that this will not result in a substantial gain to the state; the cost of writing this increased number of checks and delivering them is not negligible. However, to achieve this change by means of a constitutional amendment is, as Samuel Witwer so well put it, "Like using a shotgun to kill a gnat."

Furthermore, this proposed constitutional amendment would probably be ruled invalid by the court.

Another of these amendments prohibits legislators from voting on issues where they have a "conflict of interest as a result of personal, family, or financial interest in a bill." The amendment does not spell out precisely what is a conflict.

Let's look at a practical example. Illinois is one of the biggest agricultural states in the Union. We have a number of farmers in the House, 11 in this session. Bills on agriculture are common: Emergency loans, flood relief, environmental requirements, special tax exemptions, to name just a few. We constantly pass bills to help Illinois agriculture, and thus help the Illinois economy. But any farmer who gets elected to the legislature would be prohibited from voting on Kano is the center of northern chauvinism and it was there that a pogrom against Ibos took place in 1966, before the Biafra war. Any suggestion that something similar is in the offing could have serious consequences throughout the country.

Gen. Obasanjo, who is a Yoruba from the west, has taken care to cement the alliance with the northern Hausas by appointing as chief of staff Brigadier Shehu Yar Adua, the former transport minister. He is credited with being behind most of the more radical policies of General Mohammed, also a Hausa. He was responsible for clearing up the appalling congestion in Lagos port and the cement scandal which threatened to wreck Nigeria's economy.

Nigeria had been moving toward more left-wing policies under Gen. Mohammed, and the pressure is still in that direction. There has been the predictable student demonstration to claim that the CIA was behind Gen. Mohammed's murder because he had supported the Popular Movement in Angola.

Last week the British high commission was attacked after it had been discovered that Col. Dimka had called on the high commissioner and demanded a telephone call to the former Nigerian leader, Gen. Gowon, in England.

Voice of the people these bills—the most important bills his constituents elected him to vote upon!

Similarly, small businessmen elected to the legislature would be prohibited from voting on taxes or even on funds for local roads and streets. A bill is introduced to increase the income tax, and none of the businessmen can vote against it! It thus becomes easier to raise taxes, because some members of the legislature are in business!

One final example should point up the absurd consequences generated by this misguided amendment. The proposed constitutional language prohibits "personal, family or financial" conflicts of interest. How many members of the legislature would not have a conflict on a bill proposing senior citizen tax relief? How many members have a living parent over 65 living in Illinois, who would directly benefit from that kind of legislation? I submit that there would be very few members left to vote. That would be government by the minority.

A third proposed amendment would prohibit pay to a legislator

By DON OAKLEY

Any public figure, high or low, who attempts to take a moderate stand on the increasingly explosive issue of abortion does so at his peril.

Latest evidence of this was the criticism immediately voiced against President Ford by both pros and antis for his recent statement that he believes the Supreme Court's 1973 decision "went too far" and that he favors a constitutional amendment that would leave the regulation of abortion up to the individual states.

These were fighting words to extremists on the one side, who want a flat constitutional ban on abortion—period. They were also displeasing to extremists on the other side, who contend that a woman should have an absolute and unrestricted right to an abortion.

The court's decision did, in fact, confer that right during the first three months of pregnancy while giving the states varying degrees of control during the remaining months, including outright prohibition in the final trimester except in cases involving the mother's life or health.

To moderates, if there are any left, this was the most reasonable compromise that could be made on a question that can never be resolved to everyone's satisfaction. But emotion, not reason, rules this issue, and in the controversy over "rights"—the unborn child's, the mother's, society's—moderation sadly seems to be becoming less and less a virtue.

How, for example, is one to reason with a pregnant woman, who insists in a letter to a newspaper columnist that she loves the developing fetus within her "every bit as much" as she loves her already born children, that while no one has the right to force her to have an abortion, she does not necessarily have the right to forbid abortion to all other women?

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

The all-conference basketball teams for the NCIC were announced today. Players were selected and voted on by the basketball coaches of the conference at a meeting at Mendoza High School. Ken Haynes, 5-11 senior forward, was honored on the first team, along with players from Streator, Princeton, Rock Falls and Kewanee. Two more Dukes were given honorable mention: Mike Kopeck, junior forward, and Paul Kopeck, junior center.

The Dixon Pilot's Association will hold its annual banquet March 12 at 6:30 p.m. in the Lincoln Manor. All members, former members and friends are welcome but reservations must be made by March 8.

50 YEARS AGO

The Sterling "Y" Juniors gave the local Juniors a return

At the same time, some pro-abortionists have done much to fuel emotions by rubbing their legal victory in the public's face. Such things as billboards advertising abortion services and demands for public subsidization of abortion clinics have been highly offensive to many people, not all of whom are totally opposed to abortion under any circumstances.

Many people are also concerned that too-easy abortion is supplanting birth control methods—among them old-fashioned chastity—as the "contraceptive" of choice, with a consequent erosion of morality.

Pro-abortionists cannot dismiss these concerns lightly, or pretend that abortion is anything but a choice between evils. But neither can anti-abortionists ignore the fact that what they propose would result in other evils—a return to backstreet butchery, abortion for the rich but not for the poor, increasing disrespect for the law.

The President's recommendation, we believe, carries just this kind of danger.

In those states which outlawed abortion, abortions would still continue, except that they would again be underground. More liberal states would find themselves becoming abortion meccas, much as New York was before the Supreme Court's decision.

In all states, intense pressures would be brought to bear against the legislatures from both sides, prolonging this question endlessly and uselessly and ensuring that the nation would continue to be racked with controversy and dissension.

But whether one agrees or disagrees with Mr. Ford, his attempt to arrive at a position consistent with his own morality and his view of what is best for all Americans—an attempt we believe was sincere and honest notwithstanding any political consideration that might have been involved—certainly does not deserve the scorn that some people have heaped upon him.

game Saturday much to the sorrow of the local team. The Sterling team got away to a good lead right from the start and smiled throughout the game at the efforts of the local team to hinder them in their triumphant march.

Fair weather Saturday, unsurpassed bargains offered by Dixon merchants and the completeness of the circulation of The Telegraph overcame the handicap of bad roads in many parts of this territory and drew to Dixon one of the biggest crowds of shoppers that has ever participated in a Dollar Day Carnival here. From early in the morning until late at night every store which participated in the Dollar Day price-slashing was crowded with shoppers and from every hand come reports of an unusually successful trade day.

net. Dr. Leroy Levitt, for example, was appointed director of the Department of Mental Health with the understanding he would also serve as a $22,500 a year consultant to Chicago Medical School.

This amendment is highly discriminatory because it affects only public employees. A legislator who is employed by a private business may continue to receive an outside salary—even when he is actually in Springfield working as a legislator!

If this proposal had been a requirement in the past, some of the most distinguished and effective members of the house would have been disqualified—as for example, Abe Lincoln, and Stephen Douglas!

As I stated previously, these petitions are being circulated by well-intentioned but ill-informed people. I urge everyone to seriously study these proposals before signing. Personally, I believe that only the salary amendment has merit.

Lose 10 Lbs.
Dieting is really easier in cool weather, for then we use up more calories to keep our body temperature at the 98.6-degree point.

This dehydration diet will lop off 10 pounds in the first 10 days, which keeps the dieter's morale high.

And it doesn't involve any drugs that race your heart and thus penalize that faithful "motor," when you should be focusing on your stomach!

Here's how men and women can safely slenderize quickly:
(1) Limit your total liquid intake to just one 8 oz. glass the first day; then two glasses the second and three from the third day through the 10th.

This restriction in fluid intake will make your mouth feel cottony so your attention shifts from food to a desire for liquids. Many dieters pour a glass of water into the ice cube tray, then suck on a wafer of ice, saying it checks thirst better.

(2) Limit your food intake meanwhile to 800 calories daily for women and 1,200 for men. In three days your stomach will shrink somewhat and thus register "full" on less calories.

(3) Include at least 400 calories worth of protein foods, for your muscles require fresh protein every day, though you have plenty of sugar and fat stored in your body.

(4) Shop around for items that give you reasonable bulk with low calorie value.

A medium hot dog counts approximately 100 calories, as does a banana, and a whole head of lettuce is about that same figure.

Cottage cheese is an excellent source of protein and it counts only about 200 calories per cup (8 oz.), yet that will fill your shrunken stomach pretty well.

(5) Ladle your calorie quota on your plate in the kitchen and then carry it to the dinner table, so no extra food will be visible!

(6) Preferably, eat alone, for the presence of other diners makes a "full" person consume a lot more.

The German scientist Bayer thus showed that when a hungry hen ate alone, she'd stop after consuming 50 grams of wheat, but she'd eat 60 per cent more if a second hen was with her and she'd devour still more if three hungry hens began eating beside her!

(7) Go low on caffeine drinks, such as coffee, tea and cola beverages for they stimulate more hunger.

If you think you MUST have a little coffee, take half a cup at breakfast; then save your remaining fluid quota for fruit juices, milk and water later in the day.

Send for the diet booklet "How To Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

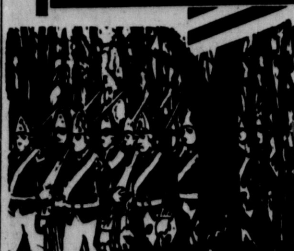

(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg., Meliott, Ind. 47958, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing cost, when you send for one of his booklets.)

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

The largest exodus in American history began in 1776 when, besieged by the fledgling patriot army, Britisher Gen. William Howe evacuated Boston and escorted 1,100 Massachusetts Loyalists to Halifax, Nova Scotia. Throughout the Revolution, patriots drummed Loyalists out of their communities. The World Almanac reports that 100,000 men, women and children fled to Canada.

GOP candidate with problem

Cooper has trouble trying to make news

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Richard Cooper says he isn't sure just what news is, but he's positive he isn't making it. However, the 36-year-old millionaire businessman says he still feels he has a shot at the Republican nomination for governor in the March 16 primary election.

"I don't know, I've been asked 'How come you're not making news?' and I don't know why we're not making news," said Cooper, who to gain publicity has worked at various jobs such as harvesting crops and helping on a poultry truck.

Cooper called a news conference Friday to restate two proposals he already had put forth in his campaign.

One was to create a special prosecutor, independent of any single government branch, to investigate official corruption.

The other was to reduce the number of state agencies and departments from 59 to nine, a plan he illustrated by holding up two large organizational charts.

Then the owner of Weight Watchers of Chicago, Inc., was asked why he held the news conference to present the proposals a second time.

"Well, I'd like it to make news," he said. "...I think the polls show we don't have yet much name recognition."

"I've traveled around with these charts all over the state and showed them up and held them up, and I have no idea of what it takes to make news," said Cooper.

Cooper had said earlier he didn't expect to defeat James Thompson, former U.S. attorney, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. But Friday he said the results of the New Hampshire primary have given him new hope.

As Cooper saw it, the voter trend in New Hampshire was conservative because Ronald Reagan, President Ford and Jimmy Carter, who won the Democratic primary there, are all conservatives.

"And I would say I am a little bit more conservative than the other candidates running for governor," he said.

Cooper also said published polls show that while only 10 per cent of the voters favor him, only 30 per cent favor Thompson.

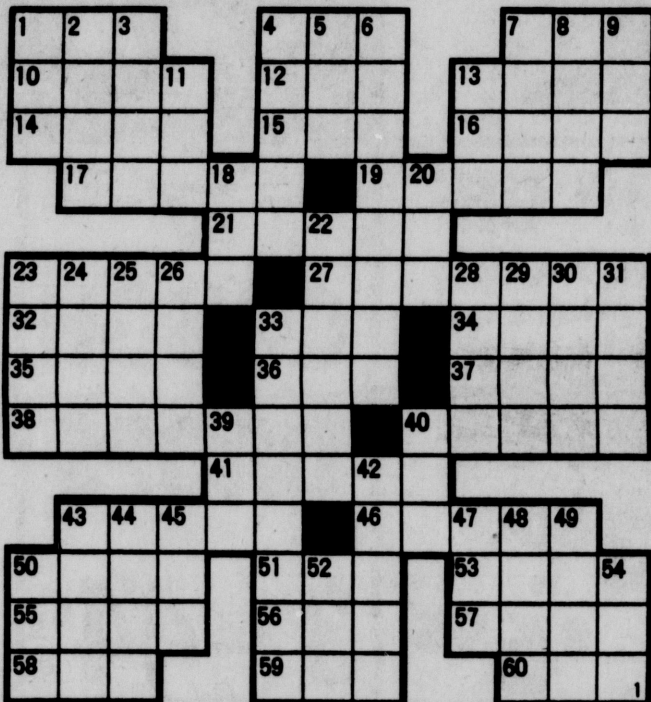

"The polls still show that my opponent hasn't won it," said Cooper. "...Till 51 per cent say they're voting for him I don't feel that I've lost it."

Boy hero fears for life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the days of the Hardy Boys, heroism brought esteem. For 10-year-old Leon President, it has meant death threats and beatings.

Leon got a Los Angeles Police Commission citation and a pair of real handcuffs for helping capture a juvenile bandit suspect last fall with a pair of toy cuffs.

But his mother, Kathy President, said Friday she is sending her son to live with his father in another city for his own protection.

"It's mostly the teen-age gangs," she said. "It's not too good. The best thing is to send him somewhere until things cool off."

Mrs. President said Leon has been beaten and threatened with death by the gangs in Hollywood. He is now escorted to and from school by her 19-year-old stepson, she said.

"He's not afraid of them," she said. "He just wishes they'd leave him alone. A lot of pressure's been on him and it will be good for him to get away."

It began last September when Leon became suspicious of the sudden affluence of four neighborhood friends. He knew that several elderly residents of a Hollywood apartment house had been recently burglarized.

When he asked his friends about it, they offered him $11 to keep quiet.

He took the money to the Hollywood police station and accompanied officers to an address where two boys, 10 and 11, were arrested, and to another address where a 12-year-old

Doctor Says: Problem appears to be hyperventilation

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Some months ago my husband underwent surgery and I had a severe shock when I was told that he might not recover. Since then he has progressed very well but I haven't. I developed tingling in my hands and feet and up my legs with some weakness. I have feelings of hot and cold with perspiration and cold spots in my scalp. I awaken from bad dreams with a jarring start. I have loss of appetite and some loss of weight.

I visited three physicians with no results. Extensive X rays, cardiograms and all the tests failed to show anything and one doctor prescribed Valium. I was referred to another doctor who diagnosed my trouble as hyperventilation and he sent me to a neurologist. The neurologist gave me extensive tests and suggested I breathe into a paper bag when I had these spells. I did but this has helped very little. Is there anything you can suggest that I can do that will relieve me other than drugs? I am very nervous from the tingling and from the weakness in my legs.

DEAR READER — In view of your story and the examinations that you've had, I would suspect that you do not have any serious illness. Hyperventilation means over breathing. With it a person blows off too much carbon dioxide and it's fairly standard to tell a patient to breathe into a brown paper bag (not a plastic bag). Laboratory analysis has shown that chemically this may not always do too much but it does seem to help some people. Others as in your case, get very little benefit from it.

Your hyperventilation is no doubt related to an anxiety reaction which you are experiencing. And that is also the explanation of some of your other symptoms. The anxiety reaction was no doubt triggered off by the shock that you had from your husband's acute illness. Getting over it is not always that easy.

I think you should ask your doctor to refer you to a psychiatrist. Let's face it, the situational anxiety response that you are having is basically an emotional problem. You need help for that just as much as if you had a broken leg. You would be surprised how much good you can get out of quality professional counseling in such situations. Some of these situational problems can be relieved rather quickly. There are a variety of medicines which help, depending on which kind of emotional response a person has experienced. The medicines that are available certainly extend beyond the range of prescribing Valium alone or any other just simple tranquilizer.

You'll get a lot more good out of some professional counseling than you will out of breathing into a brown paper bag in your particular instance. It may help improve your life thereafter. Why take tranquilizers or medicines to dull your responses to something when you have a good opportunity with professional counseling to resolve the situation and free yourself from medicines entirely?

A woman's duty . . . to be beautiful

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA) — Ah, "angelika," to be angry with Jolie, is not possible.

"Take off your glasses, let me see your eyes," she demands in her throaty Hungarian accent. She leans forward on the couch and the slight cast in her lovely hazel eyes seems to fade. Her perfume is captivating.

"Ah, you see, you are attractive — very attractive." She pauses. Then, "You are not beautiful, but . . ." She gestures at the responding laughter to indicate she meant no harm. She was only speaking the truth.

And who better to judge than Mama Gabor, the woman who passed on her own potent beauty and ambition to daughters Magda, Zsa Zsa and Eva? She reveals the whole story — the in-fighting and in-loving — in her recently published autobiography, "Jolie Gabor," coauthored by Cindy Adams in whose elegant Fifth Avenue apartment the interview takes place.

"I think this is a woman's duty, to be beautiful," Jolie says, clapping her hand to her chest and closing her eyes dramatically. "She must be. Always she can do something. She makes a new hairdo, she makes a new make-up. If the nose isn't good, she fixes it. That is why I write the book. It's never too late for a new look, a new business, a new husband or lover. When we think life is over, it's always to begin."

She's quite the operator, this little blonde coquette dressed in beige blouse and skirt, beige boots, cranberry vest — cut long for her full figure — and matching cranberry hat angled just so.

And, of course, there's the jewelry. The rhinestone chains, a small rhinestone pin on one collar and three rhinestone rings, only one of which is hers. "The other two I must take back to my shop for repair," she explains referring to the Jolie Gabor jewelry boutique on beautiful villa, five servants and I am so unhappy because love is the most important.

JOLIE GABOR: "It's never too late for a new look . . . or for a new husband or lover."

"I told always the girls, look here children, money is good, and you will be actresses and marry kings, but when you can support yourself is best. You will not be a wife to a very rich man who makes a slave from you. I was a grande dame with all the men around me to adore me and maybe I taught them to want this, too, but I tell you something: every woman loves this."

She thinks for a moment.

"Maybe this is why the children divorce so much. When they are married five, six years and the marriage is boring, they look for happiness." There have been 17 marriages among the four Gabor women, with Jolie and Magda tied at three each, the lowest number.

Reader slashes at rape myths with the facts

Dear Ann: There were an estimated 40,000 rapes in Chicago last year. Only 4,000 were reported, largely because most women felt they would not be believed or feared being insulted by authorities and humiliated in court. Only 129 of the rapes reported ended in a conviction.

Although attitudes are changing there are still many myths about rape. You could help immeasurably by printing this letter.

Most people think rapes are committed in dark alleys by perverted strangers who can no longer control their sexual desires. The truth is that 48 per cent of all reported rapes are perpetrated by someone known to the victim and 51 per cent occur in the home of the victim or rapist. Only 16 per cent of the rapes in a Philadelphia study were not planned in advance. Ninety per cent of the convicted rapists tested out as "psychologically normal"—no different than most men walking the streets.

Most rapists choose their victims because of their vulnerability (living alone, car trouble, no one around, physically or mentally incapacitated, etc.), not because they are sexy-looking. We have had calls concerning victims from 2 to 90 years of age.

Perhaps the most damaging myth of all is that rape is motivated by sexual needs. Psychologists, psychiatrists and rapists themselves admit it is the desire to dominate and humiliate that causes rape. Sex is only the method by which the rapist achieves these goals.

Most rapists are married or have another sexual partner. What they really want is the feeling of power that comes from controlling someone else's life. Women who are raised to be passive and are unskilled in defending themselves are natural victims.

It is time the myths about rape were debunked. They are damaging to the victims who are humiliated and brutalized, then told they probably enjoyed it or wanted it. These myths are an indictment against a society that allows half of its population to live in constant fear of attack and continues to place the blame on the victims. Thank you.—Linda Reinshagen, Victim Services Coordinator, Rape Crisis, Inc., Chicago.

Dear Linda: Your letter has made an excellent contribution to understanding. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann: What's the matter with me? My life is a mess and I don't know why.

I quit high school to marry a foreigner. My mother thought he had money. She was right, but I could never get my hands on any of it. He was so stingy I had to steal from his wallet to buy groceries. The marriage lasted 11 months.

For the next year I went with a man who owned a restaurant where I worked. He and his wife fought like cats and dogs. He kept promising they'd be divorced and then he's marry me. Finally I said, "Now or never." He went to the priest for permission and the priest said he should stay with his wife. (They had six children.)

The next man I fell in love with turned out to be a homosexual who was using me for a cover. I wasted a year and a half on that rat. I nearly had a nervous breakdown and moved in with my sister and her husband. One night I got drunk and had an affair with my brother-in-law. My sister caught us and threw me out. Please tell me why I am having so much hard luck.—Jinxed

Dear J.: It's not your luck that's hard, honey, it's your head. Get some counseling and learn why you subconsciously set yourself up for disaster.

Homemakers News

By FRANCES G. REEVERTS

Lee Co. Extension Adviser Grapefruit is coming to tables these days in colors ranging from white to rosy red. Grapefruit can add magic to your meals, color to your table and lots of zing to faltering winter appetites.

Whatever the color, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says grapefruit is on the market in great numbers. It peaks at just the right time when winter appetites need a fresh wink of spring coming. Marketing specialist with the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service reports grapefruit is expected to be up 14 per cent from last season's crop.

With the exception of the California desert crop of grapefruit, all growing areas report increases. Florida's early crop is forecast up 12 per cent; Texas' crop up 50 per cent over last year's crop; and the Arizona forecast is a 12 per cent increase.

This should enlarge the supply of frozen concentrated grapefruit juice and grapefruit sections, as well as the fresh supply.

According to USDA, the newest grapefruit among the reds is the Star Ruby, a grapefruit which was developed at the Texas A&I University Citrus Center. The intense color of the Star Ruby makes it the brightest of the red varieties. Brought to market for the first time in 1970, it thrives in the lower Rio Grand Valley.

Other unusual features of the Star Ruby are that it has a firmer flesh than most other pinks and reds, and its juice holds the red color better than others. R. A. Hensz of the Texas A&I University says of it . . . "even the tree of the Star Ruby is different from other citrus trees. If you cut and peel back the bark of the trunk or a large limb, the exposed cambium on the wood bark is red, sometimes almost as red as the fruit. It is as if the Star Ruby's red color actually flowed through the tree."

To help you give the white, pink or red grapefruit an equal chance to view for favoritism at your table, use one of the following suggestions:

BAKED GRAPEFRUIT

2 cups crushed corn flakes
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar

2 grapefruit

1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

1/4 cup melted butter

Combine corn flakes, sugar, cinnamon and butter. Half grapefruit. Core and loosen sections. Top with corn flake mixture. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) 10 to 15 minutes. Serve immediately.

BROILED FISH WITH GRAPEFRUIT

2 pounds fish prepared for broiling

3 slices of grapefruit (unpeeled)

2 tablespoons chopped parsley

1/2 pound butter

1 cup grapefruit juice
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

Put fish in shallow baking pan. Place grapefruit slices on it. Salt and pepper well. Sprinkle with parsley. Dot with butter and place in oven (350 degrees) for about 25 minutes. As fish bakes, add part of the grapefruit juice. When fish is well cooked, place under the broiler flame and brown. Remove to platter. Pour remaining grapefruit juice in fish pan. Add Worcestershire sauce and bring to boil on top of the stove. Strain over fish and sprinkle with paprika. Garnish platter with grapefruit moons.

Attention!

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Match point vs. rubber bridge

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "A rubber-bridge player has no problem with today's hand. He lets East hold the first spade with his queen, ducks the second spade also, and wins the third. Then he takes the club finesse and makes his contract whether it wins or loses."

Jim: "A match-point player should also duck the first spade, but will put in considerable study about the second one. If he wins it and the club finesse is on he runs off twelve tricks. If the club finessses loses and spades were 6-2 he still makes five odd. If they were 4-4 he makes the same three he would score if he had ducked the second spade. But if West had led from a five-card spade suit, he will have chucked his contract right out the window."

Oswald: "Most match-point players would grab that second spade. They would see that their three notrump was a very normal contract and would go

NIU geologist studying some of earth's oldest rocks

DE KALB — What was the earth's surface like during the earliest geological periods?

To find out, geologist Eugene Perry is analyzing some of the world's oldest rocks in his Davis Hall laboratory on the Northern Illinois University campus.

There he has assembled ancient rocks he has collected from sites in Greenland, northern Minnesota and Soviet Union. Rocks from Australia, collected by other geologists, also are being studied in the project supported by a $60,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

In a recent issue of the British science magazine, Nature, Perry and fellow researcher Jerome Oskvarek make a preliminary report based on a study of the oxygen isotope composition of rocks from the area of Greenland, some 90 miles northeast of Godthaab. The study indicates that the temperature limits of ancient oceans was between freezing and 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

He added that the upper limit is possible since the boiling point of water depends on the amount of pressure exerted by water in the atmosphere. "A higher atmospheric pressure would have kept ocean water from boiling," he said.

Scientists estimate that the earth probably was formed about 4.6 billion years ago. Perry is studying rocks that range from 1 to 3.7 billion years old.

He pointed out that ancient rocks are the only direct evidence scientists have showing the early conditions of the earth's surface.

Working with Perry on the project as research associate is Dr. Neaz Ahmed of Pakistan who earned his doctorate at the University of Birmingham, England, and who taught for several years at universities in Pakistan before coming to the United States. Before coming to NIU, he spent one year at Pennsylvania State University under a Fulbright program.

Two collisions bring tickets

Dixon Police ticketed two drivers with failure to reduce speed to avoid accidents over the weekend.

Peggy A. Brechon, 23, rural Oregon, was charged following a mishap shortly before noon Saturday. She was southbound on Lowell Park Road, following a pickup truck driven by Ronald K. Swanson, 34, Rockford. The truck stopped for a stop sign at the intersection with Galena Avenue, but Brechon said her foot slipped off the brake and her car struck the rear of the Swanson vehicle.

Police charged Gerald Senn Jr., 17, 1203 W. Seventh St., with the same offense following a Sunday-afternoon collision on the 100 block of West Everett Street. Donald W. Frank, 48, Freeport, had stopped for traffic in the eastbound inside lane. The following car, driven by Senn, was unable to stop and struck the back of Frank's car.

OREGON—A disturbance at the Betty Wood residence, rural Mt. Morris, Friday, resulted in the arrest of James Boggs, 49, Rt. 1, Mt. Morris.

Boggs was released on bond at the Public Safety Building and scheduled to appear in court at a later date. He was arrested by Ogle County Sheriff's deputies.

Charge follows bridge incident

Dixon Police arrested a rural Amboy man on two charges Saturday night.

Officers on routine patrol said they noticed a car cross the Galena Avenue bridge spinning its wheels and fishtailing. The car was stopped and the driver Michael J. McCaffrey was charged with reckless driving.

McCaffrey, 25, was additionally charged with illegal transportation of liquor with a broken seal after a partially full can of beer was reportedly found in the car by officers.

He was released on bond to appear in court March 16.

Tornado drill set for Wednesday in Amboy

Stahr said the alert will begin at 10 a.m. and last about 10 minutes. He stated that he hopes the installation of the new outdoor warning siren will be completed and will be activated to signal the alert. The special warning device has been purchased by the city and placed atop the city hall. Weather permitting, workmen will have the installation completed. The Civil Defense staff will be on duty to carry out the disaster plan and Stahr said that he hopes all individuals will take a few minutes to observe the drill to test their own disaster plans.

Dr. Donald Skidmore, superintendent of schools, said that the drill will be practiced in all Unit District 272 schools. The warning will be received at the various attendance centers on the 10-10 monitors from the state police emergency network and the disaster plans developed for each school will go into effect.

A Civil Defense staff meeting has been set for 1 p.m. Sunday in the city hall to review procedures.

Tornado drills will be conducted in all Illinois public schools between 10 and 10:15

Attempt to get Walker and Howlett on same platform fails

By T. LEE HUGHES
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The League of Women Voters thought it was finally going to get Gov. Daniel Walker and Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett on the same platform last weekend. But instead of side by side, the two men wound up appearing back-to-back.

Guidelines calling for a joint appearance at a question and answer session with the candidates were sent to campaign managers in January, says Donna Schiller, state league president.

Howlett, who is opposing Walker for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the March 16 primary, wrote the league on Feb. 17 saying he wished "to confirm my appearance" at the session.

Throughout the campaign Howlett has refused Walker's challenges to debate. But Howlett's letter indicated no opposition to a joint appearance, so the league put out a news release on Feb. 23 saying the two would share the same platform.

Mrs. Schiller says she then got a call from a Howlett campaign aide who told her that Howlett would have to leave the session early. She said that ruled out a joint appearance, adding that "was upsetting, because we thought they were."

So when the question and answer session opened Saturday morning, Howlett was speaking alone to about 300 people at a downtown hotel here. As he left, he ran into Walker, who had just come up the stairs to his own solo appearance.

"I hope your health is holding up, that's important," Walker, 53, who lost five days of campaigning earlier this year because he had the flu, told Howlett, 61.

"I never felt better, I just swam four miles in the Sangamon River," Howlett joked.

Later, as Walker himself was leaving, he ran into James Thompson and Richard Cooper, who are seeking the gubernatorial nomination on the Republican side.

"Are you going to appear side by side?" Walker asked the two men. "...Mr. Howlett wouldn't do that with me."

The two Republicans sat together on the speaker's stand for their grilling. John Gianulis, Howlett's downtown campaign manager, said later in a telephone interview that he did not know of any intentional effort to keep Howlett from appearing with Walker. At the question and answer session, the most recurring theme was campaign ethics and financial disclosure.

Howlett was asked again about $100,000 in campaign funds that were transferred to his personal account in 1974, and responded: "I've already explained where the $100,000 went in more than one press conference. The people have had it explained to them."

For Walker, it was the question of why he had not disclosed the names of contributors to his 1972 campaign. He said he would, but commented that the law did not require disclosure at the time and "I did just exactly that which every other candidate did, including some very wonderful candidates...."

That reply was criticized by Thompson, a former U. S. Attorney, who said, "I don't think that's the kind of moral leadership in politics that this state needs in 1976."

At a news conference earlier, Thompson proposed that the state's campaign financial disclosure law be changed to require candidates report all contributions. Currently, only the names of those who contribute $150 or more to a candidate during a 12-month period are required to be disclosed.

Thompson also proposed several other changes to tighten the law, including an increase in the frequency of campaign disclosure reports.

At the candidates session, Thompson noted that he was going far beyond the requirements of the law in disclosing his own campaign contributions.

"There are no dark corners in the Thompson campaign, there will be no embarrassing headlines about the Thompson campaign," said Thompson.

operation except when the mother's health is in danger.

Speaking as an individual, Mrs. Walker said she also opposes abortion, but "I think we have to be very thoughtful and try to keep it out of the political stream. I have to recognize the right to choice. It's a very knotty, knotty problem."

Gov. Walker has refused to say publicly what his personal views on abortion are.

Mrs. Walker said she wants her husband to achieve whatever goals he sets for himself.

"This may be old fashioned," she said. "But I believe a man does what he must do. Dan is so intent on trying to do worthwhile things."

ard Dowse, was an active Republican serving as a county board president in Kenosha, Wis., where she was raised.

Roberta Walker met her husband during a visit to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., in 1944 and three years later they were married. After periods of living in Chicago, Springfield, and Washington, the family moved in 1957 to their current permanent home in the northern Chicago suburb of Deerfield.

Mrs. Howlett, the youngest of eight children, was raised in Chicago where her father was a ward committeeman.

Although Howlett's political ties with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley have been described as close, Mrs. Howlett said the two families don't socialize.

Besides caring for the mansion, Mrs. Walker said she keeps busy working in various organizations for the handicapped.

The first lady said she thinks her national counterpart, Betty Ford, was not out of line in expressing her own feelings on controversial subjects.

"Why shouldn't she speak out?" Mrs. Walker said. "She's an individual. Of course, she should use discretion."

Asked whether she thought candidate's wives should take active campaign roles, Mrs. Howlett said she is content to let her husband do the talking.

"The man is the head of the house," she said. "The man is running for the office. My place is at home, taking care of my family, and I go when my husband tells me to. I'm very happy with it. But I don't criticize the younger gals for doing it at all. Times have changed."

Both women agree that a campaign brings unpleasantness, particularly the sharp criticism of their husbands in the media and the public exposure of the family.

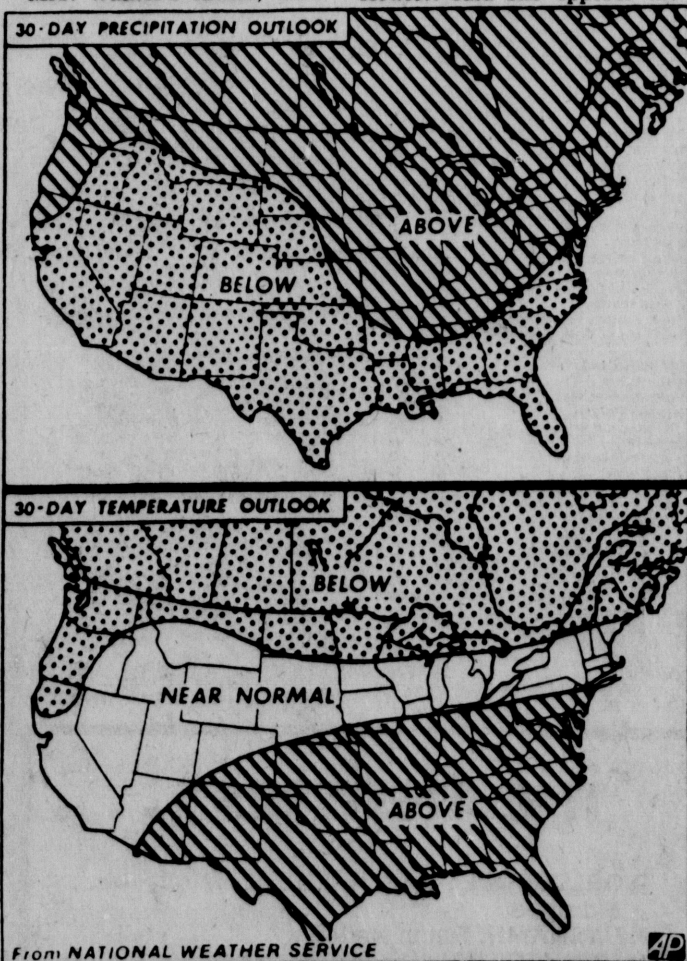

But Mrs. Howlett said, "We've been living in a fish-bowl for a long time."

Said Mrs. Walker: "Being an incumbent in office makes it different. You can't be in and not displease somebody. It's a tough fight."

Discussing other subjects, the two women said they were concerned about cracking down on persons who sell drugs.

Mrs. Walker said she "wouldn't like it" if she were told that one of her children had smoked marijuana.

Regarding abortion, Mrs. Howlett said she opposes the Ever since Henry Cavendish began his systematic study of the element hydrogen, scientists have sought new ways to use this colorless, odorless gas. More than 700 scientists and engineers from 30 countries are expected to gather today in Miami, Florida, for a world conference on the use of this element as an energy source. Hydrogen, once called "inflammable air," produces heat when it is burned in air, yielding water. It is one of the 10 most abundant elements in the earth's crust. Its name comes from the Greek words for "water-former."

THE WINNER—The referee raises the hand of Ashton's Curt Dusing after the Aces senior 112-pounder had beaten Normal University High's Doug McClure 7-4 in the semifinals. Dusing was ahead 5-4 at the end of the first period on a pair of escapes, a takedown and a penalty points. McClure had two takedowns. Dusing upped his margin to 7-4 on a reverse in the second period. Curt Dusing is second, Comets grab pair of thirds

By MIKE CUNIFF
CHAMPAIGN—Curt Dusing grabbed a second place in the 112 class, while Mike Shinville and Jeff Kelly picked up thirds at 98 and 185, respectively, here, Saturday in the finals of the Illinois High School Association Class A Wrestling Tournament.

Dusing tied Dave Torres of Yorkville 1-1 in overtime, only to have Torres awarded the match on the referee's decision. Charlie Munz, Ashton head varsity wrestling coach, commented, "The decision that was made was proper."

"We had Torres for 10 takedowns attempted and Curt for six. Curt was also hanging onto his (Torres) legs a couple of times and this was technically stalling. Curt knows he did not wrestle his best."

"I was impressed with the tournament," Munz went on. "It was a good tournament and run well. I was happy to see the crowds that follow the Class A schools. We saw a caravan going home from Riverdale that had 27 cars. This was just parents of the kids involved, not kids, that were backing their team."

Riverdale finished second overall to overpowering Yorkville. The Class A champions from Yorkville amassed 90 points to 55 for Riverdale. Normal University High was third with 43, followed by Minooka 28½, Savanna 27, Stockton 22½, Kaneland 20, Newman 14, Delavan 13½, Bismark-Henning 13, Prophetstown 13, Hoopston-East Lynn 12, Georgetown 12, and Ashton 11½.

A total of 23 other teams also scored at least one point in the two-day sessions. Dusing opened Friday with a 10-2 victory against Jerry Dornedon of Kaneland. A 7-4 decision by Dusing versus Doug McClure of Normal University High Saturday afternoon advanced the Ashton senior to the title march versus Torres.

The six minutes of regulation time were scoreless. Torres escaped in the middle period of overtime, while Dusing also got one point for an escape in the final minute to set up the 1-1 deadlock. Dusing ended the campaign 39-3.

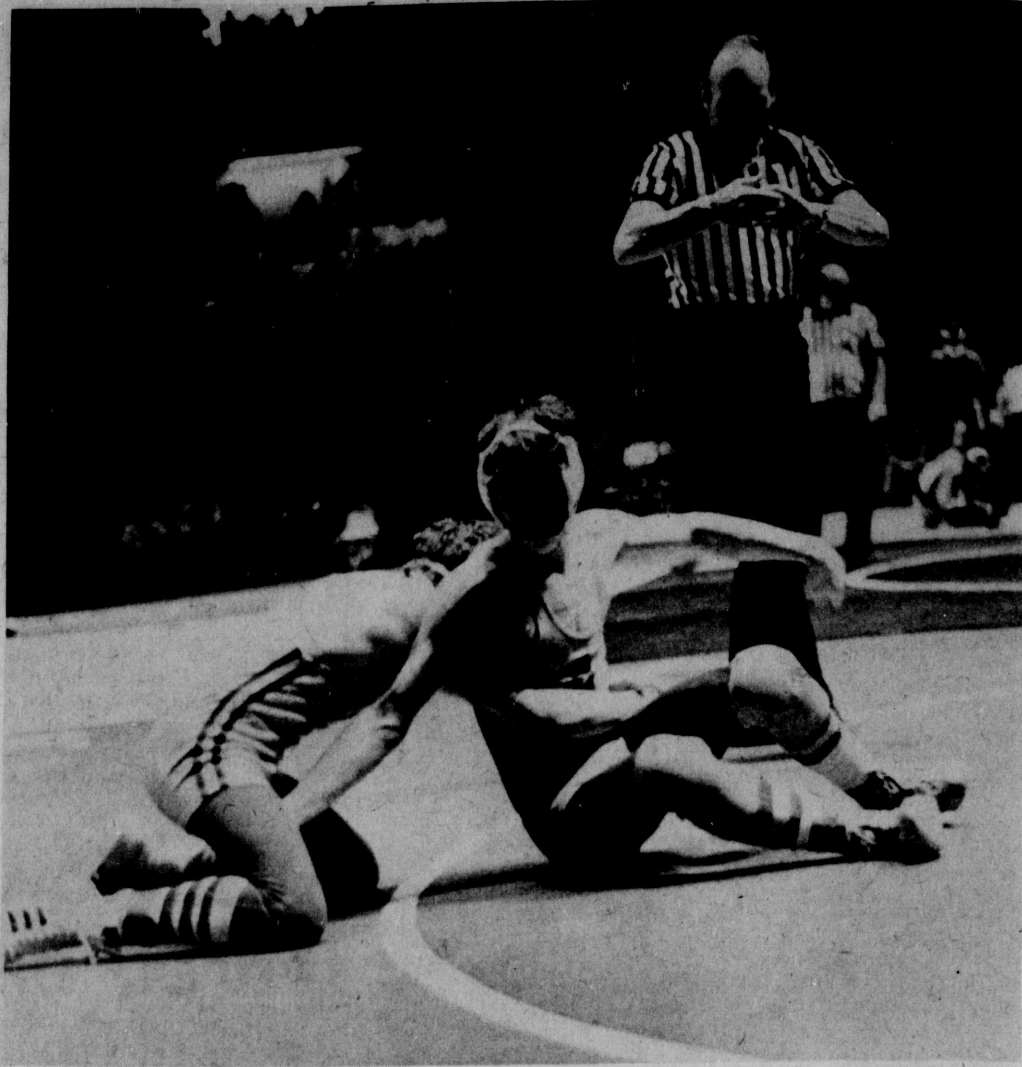

Shinville and Kelly, the Newman Comet hopes, both ended with third-place points. Shinville was edged 6-5 by Don Warner of Hoopston-East Lynn in the final :07 in the semifinals. Shinville fell behind 2-0 on a takedown before he escaped in the first period.

Shinville got a near fall for the only points of the middle frame before Warner tied the match 4-4 in the third period, also on a near fall. Shinville escaped to go up 5-4, but Warner's takedown with :07 left was decisive.

Shinville then beat Mike Torres of Yorkville in the third-place match. Shinville ended 28-5. Kelly defeated Fisher's Gene Heap 3-1 to grab third at 185. Kelly lost his initial match 7-5 to Will Gaddy of Normal University High, the eventual champion. The Comets senior worked his way through the wrestle backs for this third.

Tim Fiorini gave Rock Falls the 138-pound title in Class AA competition. Pat McDonnell was beaten 18-3 by Bob Taylor of Pekin at heavyweight. Dixon's John Green (98) lost 7-1 to Bob Porter of Niles West in his opening match and 4-1 to Joe Fortuna of Oak Lawn (Richards) in the wrestle backs.

Bloom took the AA title with 44½ points to Oak Lawn's 38. Rock Falls was third with 35, followed by Libertyville 33½, Belleville West 31, Joliet Central 28, Barrington 27, DeKalb 27, Naperville Central 27, Niles West 27, and Proviso East 26. A total of 72 other teams also scored a point.

Dixon edges Harlem

By JOE BRADY
Telegraph Sports Writer
LOVES PARK—John Kemp suffered a cold-shooting first half, but came on strong in the second with 20 points to finish with a game-high 24 markers, here, as the Dixon Dukes downed the Harlem Huskies 67-63 Saturday night.

Kemp entered the game with a 21.9-point average, after a 32-point performance Friday night, and left with a 22.4 clip. In the last two weekends, Kemp has scored a total of 109 points, with outputs of 30, 23, 32 and 24 in four games.

Harlem outscored the Dukes 29-27 in the first half, but Dixon came right back and at one point in the third quarter led by five. The Huskies never picked up the slack.

Sophomore center Randy Donegan played an excellent game in picking up 14 points, grabbing vital rebounds, and blocking one shot. Donegan's best performances have been on the road this year.

Dave Zinnen proved to be an important cog in the purple machine as he led the Dukes on the floor, contributing 13 markers to the winning cause along with many good steals. Dave controlled a stall applied by the Dukes, which ate up about a minute and a half on the clock in the fourth quarter, before the Huskies fouled to stop the clock.

Using a zone defense through most of the game, the Dukes forced Harlem to refrain from their usual fast-running game. Harlem's Scott Andrews, who usually is the Huskies' big offensive threat but has recently been in a shooting slump, appeared to regain his touch as he hit 8 of 16 from the floor and a free throw to lead his team with 17. Teammate Rod Eckberg, the only junior that starts on the team, was next in line with 16 markers.

Rounding out the Dixon scoring was John Ortigiesen with eight, Guy Price with four, plus Doug Hipple and Greg Weigle with two apiece.

The Dukes, as a team, ended the season with 44 per cent shooting average, and a 69 per cent clip from the charity stripe.

The Harlem contest was Dixon's last regular season tilt. Tournament action for the Dukes will begin Wednesday at Princeton.

Coach Dick Franklin and his Dukes end the season with a respectable 12-11 record, after playing fine, hustling basketball all year.

Harlem 16 13 17 17—63

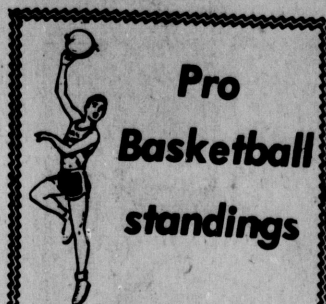

The Dixon Dukeslets used a complete team effort Saturday to edge out a narrow 62-61 win over the Harlem Huskies. The Harlem sophomores are the 1975-76 Big Nine sophomore basketball champions and now have a season record of 12 wins and six defeats. Dixon ended regular season play with a 12-8 record, and a 4-2 slate against Big Nine competition.

Dixon hit on 22 out of 37 field goal attempts for a strong 60 per cent from the field, leading all the way after the first few minutes of action. However, the game was decided at the free-throw line where the winners hit 18 to Harlem's 17, with each team attempting 27 from the line.

Dan Howell, who has a torrid 58 per cent shooting average for the season, led both teams in scoring with 23 points. Howell blistered the nets for nine baskets, in 14 attempts, and he was second in rebounds with 10. Joe Brady and Mike Swinto combined for 26 points, with each of them getting 13 for their evening's efforts. Paul Nusbbaum almost out-rebounded the entire Harlem team as he pulled down a game high of 15, and scored eight points from the field. Dixon led in rebounds with a 35-19 margin.

Celtics serve notice

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
The Boston Celtics have served notice that they're going to be a force to be reckoned with in next month's National Basketball Association playoffs — as if there were ever any doubters.

The Celtics, running their fast break to perfection, exploded from the starting gate with 41 points in the first quarter and embarrassed the NBA champion Golden State Warriors 119-101 Sunday before a sellout throng at the Boston Garden and a national television audience.

The final margin was 18 points, but it wasn't even that close.

"We felt like we had to play them well to even the series between us," said Charlie Scott, who got the Celtics going with five baskets in the first 4 1/2 minutes. The Celtics and Warriors, runaway leaders in their respective conferences, have split four meetings this season — and won't collide again until a possible match-up in the play-off finals.

"We were thoroughly beaten," said Warriors Coach Al Attles. "They got 41 points in the first period and we had to play catch up. That first period really did it to us."

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, it was Philadelphia 130, Seattle 115; Washington 110, Houston 108.

There are only about 6,000 marinas, boat yards and yacht clubs with waterfront locations in this country, according to the Outboard Boating Club of America. They'd need an average of 1,500 moorings each to accommodate the nation's 9.7 million boats. Since only a handful have anywhere near this number, OBC concludes that driveways, garages, backyards and local gas stations are the most common berths for most craft.

The Celtics got going first and never let up. Boston was up 41-24 at the quarter, 68-47 at the half and as much as 30 points after intermission. Dave Cowens topped a balanced attack with 23 points, tying Golden State's Jamaal Wilkes for game honors.

76ers 130, Sonics 115
Philadelphia moved ahead to stay with 15 consecutive points during the third period for an 85-75 lead. Seattle closed to within one, but the 76ers pulled away again.

Bullets 110, Rockets 108
Elvin Hayes' baseline jumper at the final buzzer provided the margin of victory for Washington, which moved one-half game ahead of Cleveland into first place in the Central Division.

Houston had outscored the Bullets 14-2 to tie the score 106-106 with 47 seconds to play. Hayes hit a turnaround jumper, but John Johnson's basket tied it with 13 seconds left, setting the stage for Hayes' dramatic basket.

Suns 109, Pistons 98
Phoenix fell behind 32-15 but came roaring back behind guards Paul Westphal, who tied his career high with 32 points, and rookie Ricky Sobers, who had 22 points.

Lakers 108, Cavaliers 97
Los Angeles climbed to the 500 mark and into a second-place tie with Seattle in the Pacific Division by beating Cleveland behind Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 26 points.

Blaizers 102, Hawks 98
Portland built a 20-point lead over the first three periods behind Sidney Wicks and Geoff Petrie, who scored 20 apiece, and then hung on in the fourth quarter.

Motta refuses to play Love

NEW YORK (AP) — There obviously is no love lost between Bob Love and Dick Motta, head coach and director of player of personnel for the Chicago Bulls, and the veteran forward says he's positive he won't be with the club next season.

Love, Chicago's high scorer for each of the past six years and the leader again this season, and Motta, now in his seventh year as coach, have been at odds for a long time on the dissension-riddled Bulls, which have the worst record in the National Basketball Association.

The latest chapter in the ongoing player-coach feud developed Saturday night when Motta refused to play Love during a 93-85 loss to the New York Knicks.

Afterward, Love tried to downplay the incident, saying, "I missed two days of practice and I guess he just didn't want to use me."

Love had missed the workouts to be with his ailing grandmother in Louisiana. He said his agent, Elliott Goodman, had called the Bulls' office and the gym where the team practices to inform the club that he was making the unexpected trip south and he had received permission for Love to leave the club temporarily.

The fiery Motta also tried to shrug off the situation, saying, "I just didn't want to play him."

Love also said that he was not in Chicago when Love's agent informed the club of his client's plans and whereabouts, having gone on a scouting trip.

"I haven't gone to the office for eight years," Motta said. "There's very little coaching done in the office. There's really nothing to it unless he wants to say something."

Love, insisting he did not "want to say anything negative about the coach," did say, however, "I always want to play, but that was his decision (to keep him on the bench)."

Reagan is champion in campaign button department

BROADVIEW, Ill. (AP) — Button, button, who's got the button? Ronald Reagan, that's who.

The Republican presidential candidate is the current champion in ordering campaign buttons, according to Earl Gorman, vice president of a factory that can turn out a variety of half a million badges daily.

"When Reagan announced his candidacy last fall, a jobber ordered 500,000 Reagan buttons. Not long ago we got an order for 500,000 more. No other candidate has come close to that so far," said Gorman.

What with the Bicentennial promotions and the political races, the button business is booming this year, said Gorman.

"The more candidates, the merrier," he said. "And there are plenty in the field this year, especially the Democrats seeking the presidential nomination. We had a pretty good order from Lloyd Bentsen. I assume he got rid of them before he dropped out of the race."

Gorman said President Ford has ordered only about 200,000. "He must be getting them somewhere else," said Gorman. "Our wholesale price averages around $20 per thousand."

Reagan still has a long way to go to overtake former President Richard Nixon in the button derby. Gorman recalled that Nixon's forces ordered about 20 million in his campaigns and 17 million were made for Hubert Humphrey when he ran against Nixon.

"Probably our biggest order so far from a Democrat this year was 100,000 by Jimmy Carter," said Gorman. "Our business will really start to roll after the national conventions. That's when we'll start getting orders for buttons bearing a picture of the candidate. So far, we haven't punched out any portrait stuff."

"For instance, Reagan's current button is red, white and blue with some stars and his name. He ordered 10,000 of the three-inch size and the rest 1 1/2-inch size. We make them as large as four inches.

Increase in farm prices was expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The slight rise in the prices which farmers received for raw agricultural products in the month ending Feb. 15 was "pretty much what we expected," a top agriculture department economist says.

The department's crop reporting board said Friday that those national average prices for food and fiber products at the farm rose one half of 1 per cent.

As a composite figure, the prices ended up 11 per cent above the level of mid February 1975.

They had fallen one half of 1 per cent between mid December and mid January, after a one-month climb of 1 per cent.

USDA staff economist J. Dawson Ahalt said the board's report "doesn't change anything of significance in our estimates" for either consumer food prices or farm prices this year.

The department's retail-price projections would work out to an over-all increase this year of 5 to 6 per cent above the 1975 average level of prices.

Secretary Earl Butz repeatedly points to signs of another solid year for total farm income, mainly because of continued strong foreign demand for U.S. farm products.

That factor was re-emphasized Friday before and after the report was issued.

Markets were buzzing with indications the Soviet Union is returning to the U.S. grain markets after a four-month absence, and late in the day an assessment came from USDA that the Russians' winter grain crops may have been damaged by cold, dry weather.

The board said higher prices for wheat, cattle, calves, hogs and potatoes contributed most to what increases there were in the prices from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15.

Lower prices for milk, lettuce, eggs, celery and tomatoes brought the level down, it said.

Of the major basic commodities, the food grains showed the greatest advances.

Rice, at $7.55 per 100 pounds, was 32 cents below last month and $3.75 below a year ago, and rye also was down. But the $3.66 average price for wheat was a gain of 23 cents for the month, enough to push the index up 6 per cent.

Nonetheless, that wheat price was 29 cents a bushel below year-ago levels and many farmers are said to blame the Ford administration for the drop. They said it was due to delays last year in sales to Russia, rather than to bumper crops.

A 20-cent drop in prices received for all milk, to $10 per 100 pounds, and a 52-cent drop in average manufacturing-milk market prices brought the index for dairy products down 2 per cent.

That level was 21 per cent above a year ago, with the third increase in the manufacturing-milk support price in 14 months due to be announced any day.

The meat-animal index on Feb. 15 was 26 per cent above a year ago, after a 2 per cent month-to-month increase. Only lamb prices showed a decline at wholesale.

Thought for today

The coastlands have seen and are afraid, the ends of the earth tremble; they have drawn near and come; "Take courage!" — Isaiah 41:5, 6.

"Courage and perseverance have a magical talisman, before which difficulties disappear and obstacles vanish into air." — John Quincy Adams, sixth U.S. President.

From LINDSAY
...the farming efficiency people.

THE LINDSAY SUPER-V CHISEL.

"V"...for Victory...

...over hardpan faster, and with less tractor-power. Super-V design makes the difference. This unique design results in a step-by-step action that calls for less tractor-power even in the heaviest compaction. The forward shank, at the point of the "V", shatters the first ground. This, in turn, eases the way for the shanks all along the toolbar—fracturing, lifting and opening the soil for moisture absorption and winter conditioning. With the Lindsay Super-V Chisel, you'll plow faster, deeper. Ask for details.
